

Forbes

The Best Baby Bibs To Catch Food, Drool And More

Elizabeth Mitchell Kadar Contributor ◉

Forbes Vetted

Best Portable Baby Bib

A Bold Bib And Utensils Case All In One

This bright, food-grade and BPA-free silicone bib makes eating out more fun for everyone. It rolls up compactly, with a unique snap on the pocket to create a pouch for bringing tiny utensils along. This way, they stay clean and so does your diaper bag. It features an adjustable snap neck closure for baby's comfort, and can be wiped down after mealtime or tossed in the top rack of the dishwasher for a more thorough cleaning. While my toddler refuses to wear bibs now, we have the Morepeas snack cups and they are far and away our family's favorites. The playful colors are great, and the quality is top notch.

MOTHERLY

23 products that make traveling with baby so much easier

Add these to your packing list, mama.

By Jennifer LaBracio and Courtney Thompson • Updated January 18, 2024

morepeas

$24

Essential Snack Cup

Keeping your babe fed at home is stressful enough. Keeping them fed while on vacation and away from routine is even harder. More than just a simple snack cup, this three-piece container can be used for feeding, steaming veggies and food storage. The brilliant design features a snackable top that can be used cook and strain, as well as a full-coverage lid that doubles as a suction cup base when you need a little more mealtime security. According to one reviewer, "As a former nanny and preschool teacher and as a mom I have tried all the snack cups ever invented ... and this snack cup is the absolute BEST."

Also featured in:

 babylist

VANITY FAIR

The Boston
Globe

FOX13
SEATTLE